

Disclosures

Supported by NIMH Biobehavioral Research Awards for Innovative New Scientists (BRAINS) R01 grant R01MH113857 (to Dr. Price) and by the Clinical and Translational Sciences Institute at the University of Pittsburgh (grant UL1-TR-001857).

The authors are grateful to the study participants for their time and dedicated collaboration in this work.

The authors also gratefully acknowledge Joseph Franklin, Ph.D., Chadi Abdallah, M.D., Ph.D., Satish Iyengar, Ph.D., and Lisa Parker, Ph.D., for their assistance with this work.

ClinicalTrials.gov identifier: NCT03237286.

Dr. Price is the named inventor on a University of Pittsburgh–owned provisional patent filing related to the combination intervention described in this report.

Dr. Wallace has served as a statistical consultant for Health Rhythms, Noctem Health, and Sleep Number Bed.

Dr. Mathew is supported through the use of facilities and resources at the Michael E. DeBakey VA Medical Center and receives support from the Menninger Clinic; he has received research support from Biohaven Pharmaceuticals, Boehringer Ingelheim, Janssen, Merck, NeuroRx, Sage Therapeutics, and VistaGen Therapeutics; and he has served as a consultant for Alkermes, Allergan, Axsome Therapeutics, BioXcel Therapeutics, Clexio Biosciences, Eleusis, EMA Wellness, Engrail Therapeutics, Greenwich Biosciences, Intra-Cellular Therapies, Janssen, Levo Therapeutics, Neurocrine, Perception Neuroscience, Praxis Precision Medicines, Neumora, Neurocrine, Relmada Therapeutics, Sage Therapeutics, Seelos Therapeutics, Signant Health, and Worldwide Clinical Trials.

The other authors report no financial relationships with commercial interests.